The Green Eye Shade Blog, as it has been named, will keep readers updated about the latest budget and spending issues before Congress.

"If you think federal taxes are too high and the government spends too much of your money then you will be interested in the Green Eyeshade. Everyday there is a lot going on in Congress that gets missed by the mainstream media. This blog will be a place readers can learn more about fiscal matters that could favorably or unfavorably affect their pocketbooks," said Campbell.

"We are honored to have such a strong conservative voice and dedicated leader join us on Townhall.com," said Chuck DeFeo, Vice President and General Manager of Townhall.com.

"Congressman Campbell's background and knowledge of budgetary matters will be a great asset to our website. We look forward to the Green Eyeshade holding Washington accountable for excessive government spending."

Campbell, who chairs the Budget and Spending Taskforce of the Republican Study Committee (RSC), is a CPA with more than a quarter century of experience in the business world. The RSC is the largest caucus of conservatives in the House of Representatives and has over 100 members. The Budget and Spending Taskforce works to advance fiscally responsible initiatives in Congress. Campbell's accounting background is the inspiration behind the blog's name.

"Townhall.com has proven to be a valuable resource for conservatives by providing a forum for a dialogue about the issues we care most about. I am excited about this opportunity and hope the blog will help advance this dialogue," added Campbell.

Townhall.com is the largest conservative community on the web with over 3,300 conservative grassroots blogs, over 120 conservative partner groups, 150 columnists. Additional bloggers on Townhall.com include Mike Gallagher, Hugh Hewitt, Michael Medved, and Dennis Prager.
